Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm will master catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell the 50 cent size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

The Balm is used without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

A FOOL QUESTION.

He stood at the ticket window slowly unrolling an old fashioned leather bag, while a dozen men stood behind him, driven to madness by the shouting of the gatemen calling their trains. After he got about a yard and a half of bag unrolled he suddenly stopped and said to the ticket clerk:

"Is that clock right?"

"'Tain't?" shouted the startled passenger, stooping down and making a sudden clutch at a lean and hungry carpetbag. "'Tain't right? Well, what 'n the name o' common sense do ye have it stuck up there for, then?"

"To fool people," calmly replied the clerk. "That's what we're here for—to fool people and misdirect them."

"Great Scott!" said the passenger, hurriedly rolling up his bag. "I've missed my train. I'll report you, I will!"

"Won't do any good. It's the company's orders. They pay a man to go round every morning to mix and muddle up all the clocks, so that not one of them will be right and no two of them alike."

The passenger gasped twice or thrice, but could not say anything. The ticket clerk went on:

"It's the superintendent's idea. He is fond of fun, enjoys a joke, and it does him good to see a man jump about and hear him jaw when he buys a ticket and then finds his train has been gone two hours."

"Which way is this clock wrong?" the passenger asked in despairing accents—"fast or slow?"

"Don't know. That's part of the fun not to let anybody in the building know anything about the right time. All I know is that it's about ninety minutes wrong one way or the other."

With a hollow groan the passenger grabbed his bag and made a rush for the door, upsetting any man who got in his way. In about two minutes he came back, crestfallen and meek, and took his place at the end of the line. When once more he walked up to the window he said, as he named his station and bought his ticket like a sane man:

"What made you talk to me like you did?"

"What made you ask questions like a fool?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

PLEASANT JAILS.

The Way Prisoners In Montenegro Are Treated.

When I paid a visit to the Cetinje jail I found that all the prisoners were out for a walk. For two hours every morning and again for two hours in the afternoon they are allowed to wander about on the green before the prison. There is nothing, indeed, but their own sense of honor to prevent their going farther afield unless they be murderers, in which case they wear chains. The authorities provide them with housing, of course, and with clothes—not uniform—also with a fire at which to cook their food, and they give them fourpence a day each to buy it. The prisoners cater for themselves. Two of them go to the market every morning to buy provisions for the day. They are not required to work unless they choose, and they are classified not according to the seriousness of their offense, but according to their standard of life and general behavior. If a man of education and refinement is sent to prison, care is taken to lodge him, so far as possible, in a room where the other occupants belong to his own rank in life. I found on one bed a beautiful counterpane and a pillow covered with delicate embroidery. "Yes, poor fellow, that's his wife's handiwork," the governor of the jail remarked casually as we passed. In one prison life was made so easy and pleasant that on leaving it I ventured to remark that to be there was no punishment, it seemed to me.

"No punishment!" the official who was with me exclaimed in surprise. "But think of the disgrace of being here. Is not that in itself punishment enough?"

I had and still have doubts on the subject, for I had just seen a cheery old fellow who, although the time for which he was sentenced had expired, stoutly refused to quit the prison.—Edith Sellers in Fortnightly Review.

White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

Equality.

Uncle—Hello! Dot got a new doll?

Little Miss Dot—Hush, uncle; don't speak too loud! She is not one of my own, but belonged to Millie Simpson, who was cruel to her and 'bandoned her, so I have 'dopted her, but I don't want her to know, because I mean to make no difference between her and my own dollies.—London Tit-Bits.

What It Was.

"These deceitful women are so ridiculous!" said Miss Passay. "As for me, I was never afraid to tell what my age was."

The GENERALSHIP of PHILLIDA.

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

Phillida struck several disconnected chords, then broke into rollicking ragtime. Her head was thrown back, her moist, crimson lips broken apart in a smile, her eyes shining and luminous. Every inch of space in the room seemed to vibrate with the mad joy of her mood.

Suddenly the telephone bell in the corridor pierced the melody with a prolonged, imperative summons. Phillida jumped up from the instrument and ran out to answer it, the crimson splurging into her cheeks.

"One—eight—three—five—Main!"

"Hello! Is that you, Phil?"

"Me—yes," she replied, ungrammatically and tremulously.

Hartridge seemed to wait a second for something. She distinctly heard his throat clear, and the hissing little sound that followed told Phillida that he caught his breath once or twice. Then:

"Phillida," he said huskily, "I hate like the deuce to tell you, but it's got to be done, and there's no use putting it off. I—I am going away."

"Billy! W-h-a-t?"

"Yes," he rushed on desperately, "to Mexico—this afternoon. Like a fool, I took that $3,000 and invested it in R. and G. Lost every cent of it! The governor told me to keep out of bucket shops with my blamed foolishness, but—but"—

"Oh-h, Bil-ly!"

"Well, you see," he continued in a hoarse voice, "I had been put next to one of those 'private tips,' and I just—fell in. Now I shall simply have to get down to work and pay the price of my folly in the coin of grim experience."

For a moment there was no reply. Then the girl's voice, drab, dispirited, drifted over the wire:

"Billy, how could you?"

"Why—why, it was this way, Phil," he cried back eagerly in a final attempt at self extenuation. "I thought if I could double or maybe treble my little bank account we wouldn't have so long to wait"—

Something sweet and gurgling broke suddenly against his ear. Hartridge removed the receiver and stared into its inane orifice, then he placed it back and listened. Phillida was laughing.

"Dear me, you stupid old goose," she was saying now. "I have all the money"—

"Out of the question," he cut in tartly. "You don't suppose I'm that style of chump, do you? By Jove, no! There's no end of a good chance down there for energy and determination if a fellow has his living to make—if he wants to get ahead. There aren't many opportunities here for the inexperienced, and—oh, well, anyway, I've decided to try my luck. I"—

Muffled sobs shut him off peremptorily. Two receivers jangled simultaneously in their hooks, and three minutes later Hartridge was on his way to the Pendletons.

Phillida went back to the drawing room, but it seemed all at once dull and small and suffocating. She was too unutterably crushed to do anything but sink into a chair and hold her hands. Her heart felt like a stone; her brain seethed and whirled. Billy going away! Her realization balked! Her mind simply refused to grasp the fact. And an hour ago she had been the happiest girl on the globe.

In a dazed, hopeless fashion she got up presently and went out into the flower garden. The beds were a glittering mass of rainbow color. There were roses everywhere. They nodded their gentle heads in silent sympathy with her. Myriads of violets looked up modestly from their green nests and condoled with her. Perfect pastures of johnny-jump-ups peered pertly at her from every direction. A sudden shadow cut through the streaming sunlight. Phillida turned and lifted her face to Hartridge's pained eyes.

"Billy," she said, "you were only joking!"

He spoke with a gravity she had not seen in him before.

"Not by any means, Phillida. When I rang you up it was with the intention of saying goodby without seeing you. I—I felt as though I could not bear it. But when you took it the way you did I made up my mind to come to you and explain how necessary it is that I should go."

Phillida dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief and choked back a sniffle.

"If you really loved me, Billy, you would not think of going."

Hartridge frowned, halfway between hurt and displeasure.

"That is just why I am taking this step. It offers the quickest route to our happiness."

"But, dear, it seems so foolish and quixotic when I have"—

"Phillida," he interrupted sharply, "you are not going to send me away discouraged—after all?" His tone sank to an appeal on the last two words.

Suddenly contrite, Phillida came up to him and gave him her hands. Twin tears, like wine drops from her wine brown eyes, slid shiningly down her cheeks and splashed on their interlocked fingers. She lifted her lips, soft and red as rose leaves. Hartridge caught her in his arms and kissed her quickly twice. The gate latch clicked, and he put her away from him abruptly, turning to go.

"My train leaves at 3:20. I shall write as soon as I get to my destination. Goodby!"

Phillida shook hands formally with her lover as Mr. Pendleton came up. When Hartridge had finally disappeared, after a few words with her father, the girl turned and questioned the latter with her eyes. She was wondering what had brought him home at this hour.

"I am leaving on the noon train for Chicago, Phil; important business. Will you see to the packing of my things? By the way, what's young Hartridge going down into that death hole for all by himself? He'll be sure to catch yellow fever and die, especially as there's no one to see to him. It—it isn't you, is it, little girl?"

He did not wait for an answer, but went on in the house and left Phillida standing amid the flowers, white and shaking. Life or death! Her chaotic thought untangled itself with lightning rapidity. A few minutes later, with a satisfied smile, she ran on up to the house, then into Mr. Pendleton's room and began to get his things together for the journey.

Exactly at 3 o'clock a girl in a crisp white shirt waist and mushroom sailor, smothered in veils, left a cab in front of the Union depot and walked into the general waiting room. She looked about her furtively. All the faces were unfamiliar, and, depositing her grip and parasol in a corner of a seat, she went on to the ticket office. A crowd was ahead of her, and she fell in line quite casually.

Soon a man in a light gray suit and alpine, with a topcoat over one arm and a suit case suspended from the other, pushed his way through the throngs in the rear.

Phillida felt rather than saw his keen eyes probing the thickness of her veils. When she had sufficiently collected herself she glanced up, with quickened breath, and their glances met.

"You!"

"Really, Billy, cannot one take a railroad journey without so much ado?" They had got apart from the crowd, and Phillida as she spoke turned and pushed back into line.

"But I don't understand. I did not know—you didn't tell me"— Hartridge broke off nonplused. The pulses in his temples were throbbing absurdly.

Phillida gave him her eyes an instant. They were suddenly vivid and subtle and tantalizing. Then without warning they brimmed with tears.

"There are so few—opportunities here for—for inexperienced persons," she jerked out in a quivering undertone. "I've just learned of a place where any one who is—er—energetic and determined can get some sort of a start, and I—well, I've decided to try my luck. You see, poor papa—so unwise of him—has been fooling around bucket shops, and—and"—

The color rose like a tidal wave in Hartridge's face. They could stop off in Philadelphia long enough to have the ceremony performed and take the midnight train south. He looked again into Phillida's eyes. They were clear and bright and steadfast.

"You—you angel!"

He bought two tickets.

They Worship the Cow.

In the Nilgiri hills of southern India there dwells a race of men, the Todas, who devote the whole of their career to the worship of the cow or, to be precise, of the buffalo. Their most sacred temple is a cow house, and the whole life of the people is governed by the most rigid observance of the routine of dairy work, every detail of which is performed with the most elaborate ritual. They alone can perform the duties of milking and buttermaking who have been duly consecrated for this work by fasting and the performance of mysterious rites. Representing the only priesthood, they are compelled after their initiation for the rest of their days to play the part of the dairyman. The lesser priests may marry, but the high priest must be a celibate at least for a given period of years.

Fun With a Jury.

One of the most amusing yet unexpected sensation scenes ever witnessed in a theater occurred once at the Theater Royal, Manchester. The curtain drew up for Mr. Toole to address the court re Bardell versus Pickwick when suddenly the jury mysteriously disappeared, the bottom of their box having fallen out. At first the audience was silent, fearing some dreadful accident had occurred, but as the unlucky jurymen rapidly reappeared unhurt, though looking foolish, they broke out into a perfect hurricane of laughter, which lasted several minutes. The curtain had to be dropped to allow the jury to be "boxed" again, and when Mr. Toole began his address he provoked another burst of risibility by alluding to the jury as "that worthy body of steadfast and immovable men."

Hours Very Enticing.

In many downtown office buildings men representing out of town interests have only desk room where their mail is delivered. It was not an unusual thing, then, for two young fellows walking along a certain corridor to see on an office door the following:

"I would like to work for that man with half an hour off for lunch," said one of the strollers.

A few feet away the other youth stopped suddenly and, pointing at a door, said:

"I would prefer that man for a boss if he would give me that half hour for lunch."

The sign read:

"Charles Brown. Office hours 1:30 to 2 p. m."—New York Globe.

GOT HIS SHIRTS.

"The mode of life was simpler in those days than now, but the same humor which still makes collegians so comic effervesced in the old days. When, for example, William Pennington, son of a former governor of New Jersey and himself afterward speaker of the national house of representatives, roomed next door to Senior Tutor Topping it was the custom for each man to hang on the outside knob of his door the bag containing his soiled clothes for the laundry.

"Pennington stuffed his own skirts one day in Tutor Topping's bag and waited for the day when the clean linen was returned and laid out on Topping's bed. Then, knowing that two of the younger tutors were in Topping's room, Pennington knocked at his door. On entering he put on an embarrassed air, as if hesitating to speak in the presence of the other tutors.

"Topping in a lofty way said: 'These gentlemen are my friends. I have no secrets from them. Say what you wish.' Pennington still hemmed and hawed, but, again urged to speak, blurted out: 'It is not my fault, Mr. Topping. I did not want to say anything about it now, but as you insist I must ask you to please return the skirts I lent you, as I am in need of them.'

"Topping's rage and horror at being thus addressed before the younger tutors, who looked up to him as a Magnus Apollo, may well be imagined. He began to upbraid Pennington, who interrupted him by saying: 'It's no use, Mr. Topping, trying to deny the fact. I see the shirts there on the bed with your own things!' The tutor stood aghast, but Pennington stepped to the bed and picked out his own shirts, marked with his name."

ST. LOUIS' GOLD MINE.

St. Louis has never been known as a gold mining center, but there was once a gold mine within the limits of the city, and, what is more, it yielded gold, which is more than a great many gold mines in the Rockies have done.

In the sixties of the last century there was a well dug on a hill just east of Carondelet park, and the well diggers, noticing some bright, sparkling yellow particles in the clay at the bottom, did a little washing on their own account and found several grains of gold in the pan. The news soon got abroad, and two ex-miners from the west who were living in the neighborhood quickly got the idea that there was money to be made in St. Louis gold mining, so they sank a shaft not far from the well, fully expecting rich returns from their work. They did actually find gold, but in quantities so small that they estimated a yield of about 15 cents per ton of clay, so they filled up the hole and gave up the undertaking in that place as a bad job.

But they had all the miner's enthusiasm, and the fact that they found gold at all merely stimulated their zeal to try in another place, so they went to the side of a hill where the Glaize creek had washed away the earth and made a clay precipice. They dug a hole there, where they also found traces of the precious metal, but in no greater quantities than before. Then they went up the creek about a quarter of a mile and sank another shaft, with no better result. They spent the whole spring and summer digging holes around in the neighborhood of the park, but the only benefit they realized from their work was the sobriquet "two lunatics," and people laughed at them so much that both left and went back west, where digging holes in the search for gold was taken more seriously than in St. Louis.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE

Sonoma, Sonoma County, Cal., October 26, 1907

H. H. GRANICE, EDITOR.

The Red-Headed Daily And Rudolph Spreckles.

THE NEWSPAPERS are in the thick of the fight which is going on in San Francisco. At the present time it is being made pretty warm for the Oakland Tribune, which incidentally took a slam at Rudolph Spreckels' bank and precipitated a libel suit. It is very evident that the Tribune's attitude on the graft prosecution process had put Spreckels in no amiable state of mind and it did not take much to get him going on the warpath.

It is a very vindictive proceeding this libel suit and calculated to put the Tribune on the defensive, but the red-headed daily is holding on with bull-dog tenacity and giving the enemy as good as it sends.

The Affinity Craze.

HALLOWE'EN is robbed of half of its old time charm, for our young women are no longer content to see the face of their true loves at midnight's mystic hour. They deem it advisable and necessary to behold their affinities, but affinities rarely appear on the scene on such occasions. They compete in the matrimonial field and are apples of discord.

If we owe nothing to our families, our progeny and society we may condone the affinity craze. It is purely a selfish equation. There are undoubtedly many foolish and unsuitable marriages made but many of these have nothing more tangible and practical a foundation than this so-called affinity attraction itself, which is a torch that soon flares fiercely for a short time and in an instant is extinguished. Affinity is nothing more than fascination and has its source in the imagination. It is self-hypnotism and for this reason the individual who claims to be a victim of this farcical passion is self-deluded, but has within him the power to free himself from the influence. The old-fashioned gauge of love which is founded on friendship is the sweetest of all and there should be no rocognition given to such an imaginary idealism as affinity or affinaticism.

LET POLITICS and business circles do what they may, society receives Patrick Calhoun and family into its most exclusive affairs. It recognizes in him the aristocrat and as he has always conducted himself as a gentleman it refuses to believe him what the prosecution vulgarly calls a "grafter," so he sits with the elect and dines with the mighty.

THE MONARCH OF AFRICA who offers his kingdom crown and thirty wives for sale cheap should have no trouble finding a buyer if men will only stop to think that thirty wives in the jungle are no expense compared with one wife in civilization where department stores exist.

THE CONVICTED FELON who became a fugitive and then was converted to the ministry got religion right. "The rise in his moral nature," which led to self-surrender and confession was evidence of how well it took.

THE MILLIONAIRE's daughter who says she is marrying title for love is to be pitied, for love would probably never get that title if it were not faced with gold.

Drunks Barred from S. P. Trains.

A new rule has recently been put in force on all its lines by the Southern Pacific Company, which bars intoxicated people from boarding and traveling on its trains. The rule was enforced in Santa Rosa the other day, when two men who had been meandering along the toddy route all morning attempted to board the cars at the station in afternoon. As they essayed to mount the steps of the smoker they were confronted by a husky brakeman who blocked their way and told them that they could not travel on that train until they had sobered up, and the cars pulled out without them. The last seen of them they were staggering along the street in search of a booze emporium and one was heard to say to the other, "Wazzer matter anyhow—let's have annuzzer, hic."

The Maionchi, Will to be Contested.

Public Administrator Frank L. Blackburn will contest the will of the late Leopoldo Maionchi, who died recently in the Napa asylum. This was made manifest when the matter of probating the will came up in the Superior Court last Monday before Judge Denny, who continued further proceedings in the case until next Monday. The grounds upon which the will is to be contested is that Maionchi was of unsound mind when the will was made and witnessed.

Plans for the New Masonic Building.

A. C. Lutgens, architect for the New City Hall, is preparing plans for the new building which will be erected by Temple Lodge, No. 14, F. & A. M., on the west side of the Plaza on the site formerly occupied by Wm. Rambo's blacksmith shop. The new home of our local Masonic lodge will be a handsome and substantial structure and the interior of the lodge room with its furnishings will be in keeping with the exterior of the edifice.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a costitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire kidney and urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the rheumatism by forcing the kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Weak Women
To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.
Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.
The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.
The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

WOMAN'S CLUB RECEPTION WAS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

The Ladies Cap the Climax From a Social Point of View and do Themselves Proud.

Once a year the members of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club lay aside their work for the improvement of town and valley and entertain those who are in accord with them in the civic duties which they have set out to perform. That these club women can do things social as well as civical was made manifest at their annual reception in their parlors on Friday evening of last week.

Two hundred guests were present, the greater number being ladies, and the affair was one of the swellest ever given in the valley. It was a full-dress function and the gowns of the fair sex were both beautiful and becoming.

During the evening the guests were entertained with a short musical program in which Mrs. F. T. Duhring, Miss Ida Waterman, Miss Emily Poppe and Mr. Claude Johnson took part.

Refreshments were served by the club women who proved themselves dainty and liberal providers.

The club rooms were artistically decorated with autumn leaves and with their attractive furnishings and handsomely gowned women presented a scene of beauty not soon to be forgotten.

The club women of Sonoma have long been noted for their brilliant receptions, but on this occasion they capped the climax from a social point of view and did themselves proud.

Mrs. Robert Potter Hill, ex-President of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, and other noted club women were present.

Death of Dr. Lawler.

Dr. Wm. M Lawler, ex-Superintendent of the Home for Feeble Minded at Eldridge, is dead. He passed away at his home in San Francisco the fore part of the week. Dr. Lawler was appointed Superintendent of the Home by a Board of Directors appointed by Governor Gage, who threw out Dr. A. E. Osborne to make room for their appointee. Under Dr. Lawler's regime things did not run very smoothly at the California Home and after a stormy administration of twelve months or so Dr. Lawler was removed and Dr. Dawson, the present Superintendent, appointed to the position.

Dr. Lawler was a good physician and a genial gentleman and was not quite so black as the newspapers pictured him. His principal fault was undertaking a charge for which nature never intended him.

Entertainment To-Night.

There will be an entertainment and social at Union Hall to-night. It is given by the Catholic ladies in aid of St. Francis' Church, and judging from the number of admission tickets that have been sold there will be a big turn out. The program for the entertaiment is being arranged by Miss Mamie Kelly and Mrs. L. V. Emparan, and will consist of an act by the "Roosevelt Girls," eight in number; stunts by two well-known comedians from San Francisco, singing by a wonderful boy tenor from the metropolis and other features.

After the entertainment there will be dancing and refreshments.

Marriage of a Vallejo.

Miss Angela Vallejo, the eldest daughter of Dr. Platon Vallejo of Vallejo, was married in Sacramento Tuesday to Thomas Haimes. The wedding was a very quiet affair.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Gen. M. G Vallejo and is a beautiful young woman.

The groom is in the employ of the Monticello steamship company and has long resided in Vallejo.

Trials and Tribulations of the "Hello Girl."

Early Thursday morning of last week the local telephone switchboard got the tantrums and went out on a strike, figuratively speaking. A number of subscribers were very much put out by the mishap and were inclined to grumble at "Central," and at one time about a dozen voices were endeavoring to call her up at one time. The result was confusion worse confounded. However, a switchboard man was sent down from the office of the company in Santa Rosa and with his aid local manager Simmons located the trouble and had things in working order by the noon hour, much to the relief of "Central" and the pacification of a number of impatient subscribers. A new switchboard has been promised by the Sunset people and when it is installed a better service may be expected. In the meantime remember that the phone operator cannot answer a dozen calls at one time, and that each must wait his turn and all will be answered in a surprisingly short space of time

Wealth and Taxation of the Counties

State Controller Nye has issued a tabulated and classified statement of the values of property and the indebtedness and tax rate of each of the 58 counties of California. Of these counties Sonoma is classed as sixth in point of wealth, the five counties taking precedence over her in that respect being in their order San Francisco, Los Angeles, Alameda, Santa Clara and Sacramento.

In the matter of taxation, out of the fifty-eight counties nineteen only have a lower tax rate than Sonoma's $1.75. The rate of these nineteen vary between $1.49 in Sacramento to $1.70 in Fresno.

The highest taxed county in the State is Imperial, which was recently sliced off San Diego, with a rate of $4.25; then comes little Modoc with its $3.00 rate and Yuba with a levy of $2.70 on the $100 of valuation.

In the matter of mortgages Sonoma's assessed value of mortgages is $4,653,340, as against the following figures of those counties which outrank her in point of wealth: San Francisco, $65,055,866; Los Angeles, $6,333,170; Alameda, $23,646,375; Santa Clara, $7,240,675; Sacramento, $555,670.

The Divorce Evil.

The divorce evil has become so great of late in this county that it has caused Superior Judges Seawell and Denny to sit up and take notice. Sitting en banc Monday the two Judges passed the following rule governing actions for divorce brought in their respective departments:

"Divorce—In all cases of divorce the attorney appearing for the defendant without service, shall by affidavit, show his authority to act for such defendant; all default cases must be heard in open court and must be regularly placed on the calendars of the court by the clerk as in contested matters. The services of the official reporter shall be required, and in cases of default the compensation of said reporter shall be paid by the plaintiff, and shall be the same as in contested matters."

The People Rule Under the Referendum.

Some few weeks ago the City Council ot Sacramento refused to grant the Western Pacific railroad access to certain streets and virtually barred it from entering that city as a competing road. This action of the city authorities enraged the citizens of the capital city and they resorted to the referendum. The election was held last Saturday and resulted in a stinging rebuke to the authorities and a victory for the people over the political bosses as the Western Pacific was given what it asked for by a vote of twenty te one.

Jupiter Pluvius

The much-discussed rain commenced falling here Thursday night and by daylight things were wet outside. The rain, which is a warm and gentle one, continued to come down all morning yesterday. The precipitation has been most welcome to our farmers if we except a few with grapes still unpicked in their vineyards. The grape, crop, however, has for the most part been harvested and there will be little damage on that account. Our farmers have had ample time this fall to prepare for the winter and if the rainy season has come to stay it will mean money in their pockets.

New Arc Light for Stores

C. T. Ryland, President of the Sonoma Valley Company, and J. E Van Hoosear, the electrician, have been experimenting the past week with a small arc light for use in our business houses. The experiment has proved a success and our storekeepers and others who may decire to make use of them will now be enabled to secure a better light at less cost than that obtained from the 16 and 32-candle power incandescents now in use.

Butter and Eggs Come High.

The retail price for butter and eggs in this place the past few months has varied between 75 cents and $1.00 for a 2-pound roll of butter and from 40c to 50c a dozen for eggs. Now, that the rainy season has apparently set in to stay the price of feed ought to go down and likewise butter and eggs. The latter have been going down right along, but it has been a drop in the wrong direction for the economical housewife.

Shoults will Fight Case.

R. G. Shoults, formerly a druggist of this place, who was arrested in Napa one day last week for testing and treating the eye without a license, has determined to make a test case of it and fight it out in the courts. He admits that he is not registered and claims that the license fee which the State exacts from this class of practitioners is an outrage.

Shoults resided here for several years and after selling out his drug business and leaving for Napa he hung out his shingle as an eye specialtist. His ophthalmology was lucrative but in some way it developed that he was not duly registered according to the law of this State.

Vintage Season

Although thousands of tons of grapes have already been converted into wine so far this season our winemakers have still many tons of grapes to crush. The sky has clouded up several days the past week and a few drops of rain now and then has caused renewed activity in many of the vineyards, as continued rains at this time would be most unwelcome to those of our grape-growers whose crops are still on the vines.

THE MAGIC OF MUSIC

SINGERS WHO SAVED LIVES.

The Way Lablache, the Basso, Conquered a Bear and a Burglar—Grisi's Control of a Madman With a Razor. A Musical Wife's Presence of Mind.

That music really has charms to soothe the savage beast is proved by the many times that the power of song has been the means of saving life. On one occasion when Luigi Lablache, the great opera basso, was aimlessly strolling through a French fair he was surprised by a sudden stampede of the sightseers, who rushed by him in a great panic, crying that one of the great bears had escaped from the menagerie. So surprised that he scarcely realized his danger, the singer stood his ground and almost immediately found himself face to face with the maddened beast, which halted for a moment before making its final rush. In that moment Lablache began to sing one of his favorite airs in a voice so deep and terrifying that the bear slunk away, thoroughly cowed.

It was this same singer who, when confined to his bed by a broken leg, was surprised by his landlady, who burst into his room, crying that a robber was in the house and was about to kill her husband unless he revealed the hiding place of their money and plate. Lablache, unable because of his injury to give other assistance, began to sing an aria in such thunderous tones as to terrify the robber, who fled.

Mme. Giulia Grisi was once traveling from the south of France to Paris in company with several companions of her own sex, when their privacy was intruded upon by a man who entered their apartment at a wayside station. Before long he began to act so oddly as to make the women apprehensive and at last terrified them by drawing a razor, which he began to flourish, at the same time demanding that he be permitted to sever their heads. The women realized that they had a madman in the carriage with them and also that they were without protection until the next stop of the train. In consequence they became hysterical—all save Grisi, who with great coolness suddenly began to sing in a soft voice that gradually assumed volume as she gained the attention of the man, whose threatening attitude gave way to rapt attention as the song advanced. Song after song did Grisi sing, and not another movement did the man make until the next station was reached, when the alarm was given and he was taken into custody. It transpired afterward that he had escaped from a lunatic asylum.

Jennie Lind once saved not only her own, but hundreds of other lives by her gift of song. A fire broke out back of the stage in a small theater in her native land where she was singing. The audience became alarmed, and there might have been a panic had not Jennie Lind stepped coolly out upon the stage and begun singing a favorite folk song. Reassured and entranced, the audience reseated themselves, and the fire was soon extinguished.

Another well known opera star while traveling with some friends in Mexico was surprised by a company of half breed bandits, at whose approach the escort fled, leaving their charges to the mercy of the robbers. The attitude of the latter on finding that their captives had little money and valuables was menacing in the extreme, and the travelers all expected to be murdered that night. When the robbers were eating their supper the star began to sing, and his captors were so delighted that they demanded more. For a time he gratified them, but at last suggested that he should sing for the freedom of himself and his friends. To this the bandits, cheered by wine and song, agreed, and after having sung for an hour he and his companion were free.

Kneissel, the notorious Bavarian brigand, once planned to rob a house in the neighborhood of Munich and, if necessary to secure the money and plate he knew was in the house, murder the inmates, a young married woman and her two female servants. His approach was heard by the wife, who, instead of losing her head, sat down to her piano and began to sing. The brigand listened for awhile and was on the point of forcing an entrance into the room when the song ceased and a man's voice struck up a rollicking air, to be followed in a few moments by a third man's voice singing a familiar chorus. Kneissel paused. The husband evidently had returned unexpectedly and had brought with him a friend. He was not prepared to attack the house against two men, so he beat a hasty retreat, little thinking that the voice he had heard proceeded from the lips of the young wife, a fine singer, who was an adept at mimicry.

Some years ago a released convict went to the house of the Indiana judge who had sentenced him to prison with the intention of shooting him. As he crept nearer to the window beside which the judge was sitting and raised his revolver to fire the sweet voice of the judge's wife floated out on the summer air from the bedroom, where she was singing her baby to sleep, all unconscious of her husband's peril. The lullaby she sang was one that the convict's mother used to croon to him, and, throwing aside his revolver, he walked boldly into the house and confessed to the judge his intention. The judge befriended him, and he is today one of the most influential and respected citizens of a town in the far west.—Addie Farrar in Chicago Record-Herald.

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for 10 Years Without Failure.

Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have also been subject to croup, and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequaled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

How to Cure a Cold.

The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time is one in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

The Chase Home Place.

The Chase home place has been sold to Mr. W. B. Austin of Stockton, California, and he has commenced the subdivision of this beautiful tract into resident lots. It is Mr. Austin's intention to make this subdivision the and he will make every effort to interest parties wishing to build homes. Avenues will be graded through the tract, cement sidewalks will be laid on both sides of the principal avenue, ornamental trees will be planted, and substantial bridges will be constructed over the creek running through the tract.

The Chase home place has been noted for its beautiful trees, which are one of the desirable features in the selection of a resident lot. There will be no farmyards or chicken ranches in this subdivision. Every effort will be made to have the improvements desirable.

Mr. Austin has decided to give five lots free of cost for the purpose of constructing desirable residences, and he will make all reasonable inducements as to prices and terms to any party wishing to build a home in this tract.

That this is a rare opportunity to secure a home site there can be no question, and any one contemplating building will do well to investigate Mr. Austin's offer at once, as it is reasonably certain that this offer will not last long.

Prices of lots in this tract range from $200 00 to $350.00 according to location. Terms can be arranged to suit the purchaser, and the property can be purchased from any real estate agent in Sonoma, or through Mr. Austin's authorized agent, George E. Crane, care of B. F. Campbell, Sonoma, California.
